Dear Recruiter,

As the Lead Technical Writer in the software industry, I have proven success in enhancing the content of the docs and leading a team of tech writers. My work spans companies and business units at varying stages of growth, from start-ups to multinational organizations.

With over 8+ years of professional experience, expertise in Technical Writing with Docs-as-code philosophies for creating API documentation, Product documentation, SDK/CLI documentation, and Technical Documentation using Git/GitHub, Markdown, AsciiDoc, HTML/CSS/JavaScript, and Agile methods. I seek to mentor and coach fellow tech writers along with peer review content, design plans, and technical documentation. I am known for quickly adopting products and processes, enhancing smooth user onboarding, implementing docs-as-code best practices, and improving overall documentation platforms for companies or business units.

Some of my achievements include:
- Drove successful launch of documentation of an early-stage start-up organization through docs-as-code implementation, and developed strategies to gain quick feedback about the docs using widgets.
- Managed a team of five technical writers with weekly 100+ content reviews of docs.
- Proved a vital team member who conducted a complete content reorganization that resulted in a 40% improvement in a company's website with a 55% hike in driving traffic for the year and building product documentation from scratch.

As a skilled Technical Writer with a Master of Science degree from Stratford University and a background in creating documentation using Docs-as-Code philosophies with Markdown, AsciiDoc, HTML, CSS, JavaScript, Git/GitHub, Jekyll, Visual Studio Code, and Microsoft or Google suite, for open-source and license products. I am confident I will prove myself as an asset to your organization and respectfully submit my application for your review. I would like to request a meeting to discuss your documentation. I am available at your convenience and hope to hear from you soon.

Thank you for your consideration.

Best Regards,
Rishu Mehra
